

SpeedPoets

Vol. 11.7

A Poetic Calligrapher

As a calligrapher
draws curlicues to loosen his hand I sit and write
what comes to mind
It is doubtless not poetry but doggerel or catterel in cat's cradles of words entwined and inverted just to return to
fluent perception,
association, ties.

© Michael E. Stone