

Hound's Tooth

Michael E. Stone

On the ridge's towering top,
A peak like a great hound's tooth, Cuts whitely through luminous, light clouds.

Below, the shining slope,
Vines in serried rows,
Draw black, leafless lines in the snow.

Third Wednesday